H7b1 Strengthens Document Review Support Facilities in Switzerland

H7b1 adds dedicated document review facilities in Geneva and Zurich for use by review attorneys

Geneva, Switzerland (25 July 2011) – Swiss Group H7b1 (www.h7b1.com), the forerunner of the litigation technology practice on continental Europe, is pleased to announce the opening of dedicated and hosted document review facilities in Geneva and Zurich, for use by international counsel.

The service line consists of providing international attorneys with maintained and dedicated document review rooms while confining and segregating data from the Internet. In addition, these facilities include a full range of services from hosting databases, data processing to printing, as well as database culling and full production support to include advanced redactions.

Improving Response Readiness

The new H7b1 dedicated review facilities in Geneva and Zurich are equipped with the proper technical infrastructure to handle the need for document review and culling of data originating in Switzerland or Europe, thus increasing productivity of legal teams.

The strong protection afforded to data inside of Switzerland makes in-jurisdiction data rooms optimal places for attorneys to review, cull or produce documents while complying with the general restrictions placed on data exports.

“With the increase of global investigations and cross-border litigation impacting in-jurisdiction data, it has become essential for international counsel of corporations to promptly access the corporate data despite the restrictions placed on data mobility”, explains Rafik Abboud, CEO of H7b1
